An Act to amend the Prison Act, 1877, with respect to the Allowances of Prison Officers under section thirty-six of that Act. [22nd July 1902.]

40 & 41 Vict.
c. 21.

22 Vict. c. 26.

WHEREAS it has been the practice, in granting annuities by way of superannuation or compensation allowance to prison officers under section thirty-six of the Prison Act, 1877, to limit the amount granted to that which could be granted under sections two, four and seven of the Superannuation Act, 1859 (in this Act referred to as the Civil Service scale), except in cases where the prison authority referred to in the said section (in this Act referred to as the local prison authority) undertake themselves to pay any amount granted in excess of that scale, and it is expedient to confirm that practice:

Be it therefore enacted by the King's most Excellent Majesty, by and with the advice and consent of the Lords Spiritual and Temporal, and Commons, in this present Parliament assembled, and by the authority of the same, as follows:

Confirmation of practice as to grant of pensions under 40 & 41 Vict.
c. 21. s. 36.

1.—(1) The amount of any annuity granted by the Treasury by way of superannuation or compensation allowance under section thirty-six of the Prison Act, 1877, shall not exceed the Civil Service scale, unless the local prison authority recommend that an annuity in excess of that scale shall be granted, and it shall in no case exceed the limit enacted by the said section, namely, two-thirds of the prison officer's salary and emoluments.

(2) So much of any annuity as may be granted in excess of the Civil Service scale shall be paid by the local prison authority out of the same rates as the portion of the annuity payable under the said section thirty-six, but, where the local prison authority are not the authority having the control of those rates, the consent of the latter authority shall be required to the recommendation of the local prison authority.

(3) Any annuity granted before the passing of this Act shall be deemed to have been payable in conformity with the practice confirmed by this Act, and any payments made before the passing of this Act, in conformity with that practice, are hereby confirmed.

2. This Act may be cited as the Prison Officers (Pensions) Act, Short title. 1902, and may be cited with the Prison Acts, 1865 to 1898.
