A.D. 1933.

[18th July 1933.]

WHEREAS the Church or Religious Denomination or Connexion which is now known as "the Calvinistic Methodist Church of Wales" or "the Presbyterian Church of Wales" (the one name being as regular as the other) and was formerly known as "the Welch Calvinistic Methodist Connexion" had its origin in the establishment and growth from the year 1735 onwards of certain religious societies in North and South Wales (and subsequently in England and elsewhere) which from the beginning were considered as

or Presbyterian Church of Wales Act, 1933.

A.D. 1933. forming one entire body or connexion believing the same tenets or doctrines and governed by the same rules and regulations :

And whereas in process of time the necessity arose for the more minute definition of the rules of the said Connexion on account of the enlargement of the Connexion and in order to preserve its union in consequence of which it was settled that a meeting called "the association" composed of ministers and preachers and leaders or elders of the several societies of and belonging to the Connexion should be held four times in every year and also that the ministers preachers and elders of each county in North and South Wales belonging to the Connexion should meet once a month in county monthly meetings (or presbyteries) at such place in the county as they should fix upon where all matters relating to the societies or churches in such county should be determined and that whatever matter could not be there decided upon should be reserved for the association :

And whereàs the Connexion adopted in 1801 rules relating to discipline and in 1813 rules relating to the method of ordination :

And whereas in the year 1823 after finding the need for a statement of doctrine in lieu of the expression of doctrine previously used and after minute consideration by the Connexion throughout North Wales and South Wales and after discussion at the quarterly meetings of the association in North Wales and South Wales the Connexion through the association unanimously agreed to adopt and publish a confession of faith accompanied by documents entitled respectively "The method of ordination" "Rules of discipline" and "Constitution and Church government" :

And whereas by the constitution and Church government so adopted in 1823 it was provided (inter alia) that any rule adopted by the Connexion might be altered or rescinded after discussion in at least two quarterly associations if the Connexion unanimously or a great majority thereof should be in favour of the alteration or rescission and it was further provided that every question discussed at a quarterly association might be decided by a majority of those present at the time but that it would be right that important questions of doctrine or discipline if there should be a great diversity of opinion concerning them should be discussed deliberately in several quarterly associations until by far the greater part of the Connexion should agree and otherwise the matter should be in part or altogether dropped : A.D. 1933.

And whereas a deed poll (hereinafter referred to as “ the constitutional deed ”) which was dated the tenth day of August one thousand eight hundred and twenty-six and enrolled in the High Court of Chancery on the eighth day of December one thousand eight hundred and twenty-six was made and published under the hands and seals of one hundred and fifty persons therein described as being ministers preachers elders or trustees nominated and appointed to execute the same at certain quarterly meetings or associations of the Connexion in August and September 1826 at which the same was previously read and approved and it was recited in the said constitutional deed (inter alia) that divers chapels with or without dwelling-houses situate in various parts of South and North Wales and certain parts of England and divers lands purchased or taken on lease and divers chapels meeting-houses schools and houses erected and built by and with the produce of subscriptions collections and donations (all which properties were enumerated and set forth or intended so to be in the second schedule to the constitutional deed) had been conveyed to trustees upon a variety of trusts but all intended to secure the said property for the use of the Welch Calvinistic Methodist Connexion and that further moneys and property might thereafter be given bequeathed conveyed and assured to and for the purposes of the said Connexion :

And whereas it was further recited in the constitutional deed that it had been determined that for (amongst other objects) rendering more effectual the said several deeds or conveyances leases and agreements for assisting in the exposition of the trusts thereof for guiding and explaining the objects of future donations bequests conveyances and leases for the prevention of doubt or litigation and for the better and permanent exposition and record of the objects of the said Connexion and of their confession of faith and of their rules regulations and discipline and of the qualifications and duties of all the different members elders preachers ministers and other officers therein the constitutional deed should be

or Presbyterian Church of Wales Act, 1933.

And whereas by the constitutional deed it was (inter alia) declared that the aforesaid associated societies in South Wales and North Wales and certain parts of England had been and should continue to be for ever thereafter considered as members of one general Connexion without any distinction whatsoever altogether forming one entire body and that the name and designation of the said associated societies had been and should for ever thereafter be “ the Welch Calvinistic Methodist Connexion ” and the object of the said Connexion was described and it was declared that the religious tenets or doctrines and principles of the said Connexion were contained in the confession of faith hereinbefore referred to which was set forth in a schedule to the deed :

And whereas the constitutional deed further contained a series of rules adopted for regulating the affairs of the said Connexion and governing its membership meetings appointment of ministers preachers and elders building of chapels exercise of discipline and other matters of organisation :

And whereas the said rules included (inter alia) rules providing that chapels or places of religious worship to be purchased or built for the said Connexion should be conveyed to trustees under trust deeds conformably to a plan or form to be approved by some quarterly association of the said Connexion for the purpose of securing their use as places of worship for the members of the said Connexion with preachers and ministers appointed and approved by the county monthly meetings (or presbyteries) and quarterly associations of the said Connexion and that the said county monthly meetings or quarterly associations should elect or approve the trustees and be entitled to nominate and elect new trustees in their place :

And whereas by the ninth paragraph of article 8 of the constitutional deed provision was made (inter alia) that if at any time it should be deemed necessary to set aside or vary from any rule adopted by the Connexion then such omission or variation should be proposed and should be discussed seriously and considerately in two quarterly associations at the least and if approved by such associations should be again proposed at a quarterly association and if the members composing that association should be unanimous or there should be a majority of three-fourths at the least for such omission or variation then the rule should be amended altered or cancelled or a new rule substituted in its stead as the case might require but that no alteration in the said confession of faith or the tenets or doctrines to be taught and maintained by the said Connexion should be at any time allowed or even discussed :

And whereas by the tenth paragraph of the said article 8 it was provided (inter alia) that with respect to any matter of weight in the exposition of doctrine or of discipline if there should be considerable difference in the judgment of the association respecting it then the decision of that matter should be postponed until the next or future associations and until a majority of three-fourths at the least should concur in the matter proposed and that otherwise that disputed matter should be totally or partly dismissed from the consideration of the said association :

And whereas by a deed poll dated the twenty-fifth day of September one thousand eight hundred and twenty-seven (hereinafter referred to as "the declaration of trust") duly made and published under the hands and seals of the several persons executing the same (being persons who had been appointed or who were or were intended to be trustees for one or more chapels or meeting-houses schools and other hereditaments and premises a county monthly meeting or quarterly association thereof A.D. 1933.

should direct or appoint :

And whereas the declaration of trust was enrolled in the High Court of Chancery as regards the part thereof for South Wales on the twelfth day of March one thousand eight hundred and twenty-eight and as regards the part thereof for North Wales on the sixth day of October one thousand eight hundred and twenty-eight :

And whereas since the date of the declaration of trust various chapels or meeting-houses mission halls preaching places Sunday schools colleges schools orphanages printing and publishing offices (commonly called "book rooms") dwelling-houses and other lands buildings tenements and hereditaments situate in Wales and in certain parts of England (in addition to the properties enumerated in the said second schedule to the constitutional deed) have been erected or acquired for the purposes of the said Connexion and the same and the properties acquired as hereinbefore mentioned before that date (so far as not in the meantime sold or otherwise disposed of) and also various moneys funds stocks shares securities goods chattels and other personal estate and moveable property and effects are now held by numerous trustees or bodies of trustees for the purposes of the said Connexion upon the trusts declared by the declaration of trust or upon similar trusts in conformity with model forms of trust deed from time to time sanctioned on behalf of the said Connexion or upon trusts otherwise expressed :

And whereas shortly after the late war a reconstruction commission was appointed within the said Connexion (hereinafter referred to as "the Church") to consider the question of the constitution and organisation of the Church in view of the changed conditions both spiritual and temporal and the demands of the future upon the Church and the said commission working through various committees for North Wales and South Wales respectively of which many meetings were held made reports in which recommendations were made for an alteration of the name of the Church for changes in the description of the object of the Church and for various alterations in the rules regulating the constitution and proceedings of the Church as contained in the constitutional deed :

[Ch. xxxvii.] Calvinistic Methodist [23 & 24 GEO. 5.]
or Presbyterian Church of Wales Act, 1933.

A.D. 1933.

— And whereas with regard to tenets or doctrines the said reconstruction commission recommended that a short declaration on faith and practice be drawn up and expressed its belief in the right of the Church to revise its creed whenever it should feel that such a revision was necessary :

And whereas in pursuance of the recommendations of the said reconstruction commission resolutions were passed at quarterly associations of the Church in accordance with the procedure laid down in the said ninth paragraph of article 8 of the constitutional deed whereby the name of the Church was altered to “ the Calvinistic Methodist Church of Wales ” or “ the Presbyterian Church of Wales ” (the one name to be as regular and legal as the other) certain changes were made in the description of the object of the Church as appearing in the constitutional deed and the rules regulating the constitution and proceedings of the Church as set forth in the constitutional deed were altered in various respects and in further pursuance of the said recommendations a document entitled “ A brief declaration of faith and practice ” was drawn up :

And whereas under the rules of the Church as so altered it is provided (inter alia) that the association shall meet at least eight times a year to wit four times within the province of the North Wales Association and four times within that of the South Wales Association and that its functions shall include the consideration of all the affairs of the churches district meetings and presbyteries the taking charge of the connexional funds the supervision of doctrine order and discipline and in general the seeing that the aim of the Connexion is attained and that its authority shall be final in all connexional matters and further that the association shall meet unitedly at least once every year and that this united meeting shall be called the General Assembly of the Church and shall keep oversight upon such matters as affect the whole Connexion including (inter alia) connexional property the relation of the Church to other churches church unity the rules of the Connexion and any other matters entrusted to it from time to time and that on all these questions the decision of the general assembly shall be final and it is also provided that the constitution and powers of the general assembly can be altered by a resolution approved by a three-fourths majority of those present in three associations in North Wales and of those present in three associations in South Wales: A.D. 1933.

And whereas a further outcome of the work of the said reconstruction commission has been a decision to draw up a set of articles declaratory of the constitution of the Church in matters spiritual and after prolonged and mature consideration and consultation with the presbyteries representing the churches as described in the second recital hereof resolutions have been passed at quarterly associations of the Church in accordance with the procedure laid down in the rules of the Church as altered in manner aforesaid adopting the following declaratory articles (that is to say):—
