

Provided that—

- (a) in the case of any officer appointed before the passing of the Superannuation Act, 1909, the amount of the additional allowance shall be increased by one-half per cent. in respect of each completed year which he had served at the date of the passing of that Act; and
- (b) in the case of an officer retiring after attaining the age of sixty-five years, there shall be deducted from the amount of the additional allowance which would otherwise be payable to him one-twentieth of that amount for every completed year's service subsequent to attaining that age.

3. Where any such officer dies after serving five years or upwards and while still employed in his office, the Treasury may, on the recommendation of the Lord Chancellor, grant to his legal personal representatives a gratuity equal to the annual salary of his office, or equal to the additional allowance calculated in the manner provided by the last preceding paragraph, whichever is the greater:

Provided that the amount of the gratuity which may be so granted shall be reduced by one twentieth for every completed year's service subsequent to attaining the age of sixty-five years.

4. Where any such officer dies after having become entitled to an annual allowance, and the sums actually received by him up to the time of his death on account of that allowance together with the sum received by him by way of additional allowance are less than the amount of the annual salary of his office, the Treasury, on the recommendation of the Lord Chancellor, may grant to his legal personal representatives a gratuity equal to the difference.

CHAPTER 57.

An Act to provide for raising further Money for the purpose of the Telegraph Acts, 1863 to 1920.

[19th August 1921.]

BE it enacted by the King's most Excellent Majesty, by and with the advice and consent of the Lords Spiritual and Temporal, and Commons, in this present

Parliament assembled, and by the authority of the same, as follows:—

Grant for purposes of Telegraph
Acts.

1.—(1) The Treasury may, with a view to the development of the telephonic system in the United Kingdom, without prejudice to the exercise of any powers previously given for the like purpose, issue out of the Consolidated Fund, or the growing produce thereof, such sums not exceeding in the whole the sum of five million pounds as may be required by the Postmaster-General for the purpose of developing the telephonic system according to estimates approved by the Treasury.

(2) The Treasury may, if they think fit, for the purpose of providing money for sums so authorised to be issued out of the Consolidated Fund, or for repaying to that fund all or any part of the sums so issued, borrow by means of terminable annuities for a term not exceeding twenty years, and all sums so borrowed shall be paid into the Exchequer.

(3) The said annuities shall be paid out of moneys provided by Parliament for the service of the Post Office, and if those moneys are insufficient shall be charged on and paid out of the Consolidated Fund of the United Kingdom, or the growing produce thereof.

4 Edw. 7.
c. 21.

(4) The Treasury may also, if they think fit, for the same purpose borrow money by means of the issue of Exchequer bonds, and the Capital Expenditure (Money) Act, 1904, shall have effect as if this Act had been in force at the time of the passing of that Act.

1 & 2 Geo. 5.
c. 26.

(5) Section five of the Telephone Transfer Act, 1911 (which relates to audit), shall have effect as if this Act were included amongst the Acts therein mentioned.

Short title.

2. This Act may be cited as the Telegraph (Money) Act, 1921, and may be cited with the Telegraph Acts, 1863 to 1920.

CHAPTER 58.

An Act to consolidate and amend the Law relating to Trusts in Scotland.

[19th August 1921.]

BE it enacted by the King's most Excellent Majesty, by and with the advice and consent of the Lords
